

Ernie sends his letters out 'OHMS'

DAILY MIRROR REPORTER

THE last of the 23,142 prize-winning numbers in the first Premium Bond draw will be picked today by "Ernie," the automatic selector machine at the Bond office at Lytham St. Anne's, Lancs.

"Ernie" has been working all through the week-end since he picked the first £1,000 winner just after nine o'clock on Saturday morning.

Two of every three numbers he picks are those of Bonds either not yet sold or not eligible for the June draw.

So a staff of 150 clerks have been working with him all week-end checking master files of Bond numbers to find the winners.

Letters to the 98 £1,000 winners and 192 £500 winners, whose numbers were published at the week-end, were sent out yesterday.

Numbers winning smaller prizes—from £250 to £25—will not be announced until a full list is published in the London Gazette on June 14.

But all prize winners will be notified before then in a letter enclosed in a buff "O.H.M.S." envelope.

A G.P.O. spokesman said last night: "We may be able to send out letters tomorrow to those who have won £250."

The Postmaster-General, Mr. Ernest Marples, said on Friday that all winners would be notified by Whit-sun—next week-end.

SHALLOW-SHAMPOOING IS NOT ENOUGH!

Get down to dandruff with LOXENE

IT'S MEDICATED AND PENETRATING!

It's no use expecting dandruff and other worrying hair and scalp disorders to respond to the kind of shampooing that skims over the surface of the problem. If you suffer from these common hair troubles—and most of us do, at some time or other—you've got to get right down to the root of it... with Loxene, the medicated shampoo that penetrates. Economical Loxene washes clinically clean, searching out the airborne dust and dirt that dim the hair's natural healthy liveliness. Loxene goes deep—clearing away dandruff and leaving the hair manageable, fresh and soft.

CASSANDRA sees The Bomb go off

'A REHEARSAL FOR THE DEATH OF THE WORLD'

THIS is the first picture of Britain's second and mightier H-bomb exploding over the Pacific.

It was taken from an RAF plane as the bomb went off with a blast equal to five million tons of TNT—five times greater than our first H-explosion.

CASSANDRA, the Daily Mirror columnist, watched the explosion from the deck of a British warship thirty-five miles away.

"A dress rehearsal for the Death of the World," he calls it, "... an oil painting from hell. Beautiful and dreadful. Magnificent and evil."

And Cassandra sums up: "We have shown the world—for what it is worth—our military muscles. Now we should cry halt."

What does the Mirror say? Two months ago, the Mirror said this: "... when Britain has proved to the world that we, too, possess this horrible weapon—then we must do all we can to end or limit the H-bomb tests."

THAT'S WHAT THE MIRROR SAID ON APRIL 4, AND THAT'S WHAT THE MIRROR SAYS TODAY.
